Intermodal Demand Rises

FACE IT, GLOBAL TRADE IS A REALITY. The American Trucking Association (ATA) predicts that total trucking freight revenue will approach 88% in the U.S. by 2016. “More than 70% of the world’s purchasing power and 95% of its population are outside of the U. S.” Also, trucking will increase total annual tonnage to 13-billion, giving it a 68.1% share of the total market by 2016. Much of that global volume could come from Mexico and Latin America; reason is geographical proximity to the U.S. Land and sea can access these Latin American markets.

INTERMODAL IS THE SAFE AND ENVIROMENTALLY FRIENDLY WAY TO MOVE FREIGHT FROM ORIGIN TO DESTINATION.

Intermodal is the transfer of products involving multiple modes of transportation – truck, railroad and or ocean carrier. Nearly 25 million containers and trailers are moved using intermodal transportation. Electronics, mail, food, paper products, clothes, appliances, textiles and auto parts. That’s makes intermodal and global network. Rail intermodal will become more important to trucking, which will benefit local and shorthaul carriers. The U. S. Chamber of Commerce says freight demands will rise for small businesses which make up 97% of America’s exporters and produce 26% of all export value.
